Speakers

Alina Bain is the CEO of the Launceston Chamber of Commerce and a lawyer with experience spanning law, government, economic development and international trade. Before joining the Chamber in 2024, she led the Export Council of Australia and worked with Regional Development Australia Tasmania. Alina is a passionate advocate for Launceston and Northern Tasmania's business community. Away from work, she is the mother of two adult children and enjoys exploring Tasmania's walking trails—preferably those without too many boulder fields.

Jordana Gray FCA spent 20 years building a career in finance before doing something that surprised a lot of people—walking away from a secure executive role to start her own business. After 12 years at KPMG and eight years as CFO of a large multi-entity organisation, she founded “The Edge | CFO Advisory”, where she now works as a Fractional CFO helping founders, CEOs and boards bring clarity to complex business decisions. Whether she's advising fast-growing businesses or helping a founder make sense of their numbers, Jordana's focus is always the same: turning financial complexity into practical decisions that move businesses forward. At this breakfast she'll share the highs, the doubts and the lessons from building a career that has taken her from Big Four to entrepreneurship—and why taking the less obvious path has been the most rewarding.

“Women in Tax is a relaxed, inclusive event that brings together an amazing group of people who share their experiences and support. Life is a challenge, this event allows a supportive group of people to network, support and encourage each other.” Lucinda Mills, CTA, Bellevue Advisors
